

Never-seen-before app launches

Innovative and mind-boggling, Zoldy App can save your confidential information...and possibly your life.

CADIZ, SPAIN - After an extensive period of research, analysis and testing, Zoldy App officially announced its launch today. It hopes to stir the waters of the smartphone app marketplace with features and functionalities that are almost unimaginable to many.

"This is an app expertly and exclusively designed for the world's most confidential information holders," explains Roberto Luna, Creator and Founder of Zoldy App. "It acts as an added layer of security and negotiating power for those at risk of finding themselves in severe and dangerous situations which threaten to compromise the private information they have, and in some cases, even their lives."

Zoldy App was created as a means through which individuals have the ability to fight back against insecurities, threats to personal safety, complete defenselessness or serious harassment.

Zoldy App features include confidential file uploads into an encrypted and secure virtual "box"; notification check-ins to ensure you are safe; automated built-in protection to send your files to selected people when you fail to respond; and Negotiator Mode and Panic Mode where all confidential information is sent instantly to pre-set email addresses at the touch of a button.

“This app is not for the average person, but it is my intention to provide an added security solution to those who lie outside the norm,” says Roberto Luna. “Confidential information ought to be kept confidential unless it poses a risk to its owner. If this happens, Zoldy is the powerful negotiator and conflict resolution tool you want on your side to bring balance to an unbalanced situation.”

When you want more options at your disposal, or when all else fails in dangerous circumstances, Zoldy represents an innovative technology that works to provide protection to those who need it most. The app is now available on the App Store and Google Play.

About Zoldy

Founded by Roberto Luna, Zoldy is a technology company based in Europe. Passionate about conflict resolution, information and security, Roberto began developing the Zoldy App after he identified a clear need for which there was no existing solution. A company grounded in trust, transparency and maximum protection, Zoldy aims to put the power back in the information-holder’s hands even in the most precarious of situations.

For more information about this press release, please contact:

Robert Luna

roberto.luna@zoldyapp.com